Fountain 33 SFC

Fountain Powerboats' newest addition to its lineup will make 2006 one of the company's most exciting years ever. When it comes to combining performance and family, no boat has ever done it as well as this 33-foot Sport Fish Cruiser. Fountain unveiled the boat at last year's Miami International Boat Show; the response it generated seemed to assure that, now that it's out in dealers' showrooms, it will take the market by storm and do so with style.

Whether for serious fishermen or casual weekend cruisers, the 33 SFC will fill most any bill with its fuel capacity of 300 gallons, a top speed of 51 mpg and sleeping accommodations for four adults. Integrated fold-away benches in the cockpit provide seating for eight without sacrificing space — and that simply augments the seating on the helm deck. Anglers will particularly appreciate the amidships tackle center, as well as the 50-gallon livewell and considerable lockable rod storage that are on every fisherman's must-have list. And it all comes as standard equipment!

More than one Fountain dealer considers the experience of taking command of the 12,900-pound boat from the company's first-ever center helm chair a memorable one. The Sport Fish Cruiser embodies all the performance and safety for which Fountain has become famous.

However, a boat can't bear Reggie Fountain's name without performing well, and the 33 does him proud. That top speed we mentioned can be attained in nasty conditions as well as flat calm. Turns carve handsomely, and control around the dock or while fighting a fish qualifies as nothing short of superb.

The Fountain 33 SFC has a real helm chair rather than one of the company's signature racing-style bolster seat/leaning posts. Nevertheless, the ergonomics of the helm station can't be beat. Full-performance gauges assure that you'll never be in doubt as to what those high-performance power plants are doing. The GPS speedometer with memory and trim-tab gauges come along as standard equipment you rarely see on other boats even as options.

That goes for the way Fountain backs up its boats as well, with its standard, six-year transferable hull warranty. Add the drivability and reliability of the world's most sophisticated outboards and this versatile newcomer is sure to make waves for years to come.
